WILL IT PAY?

The receipts of the Saengerfest, it is believed, will exceed the expenditures. The proceeds of the picnic will run close to $1,000. Nearly one-third of this amount has already been received from the sale of stands. The receipts from the sale of the choice of seats was about $5,000. This gives a total of $15,000, which may be regarded as assured. The entire expense of the Fest will be something over $35,000, which leaves $20,000 to be raised from the sale of tickets to the concerts. As there are seven concerts the receipts from each one need be but $3,000 in order to make the amount good. There is no doubt but that the receipts will much exceed $3,000 from each concert.

The Track at Daybreak.

The gallant thoroughbreds who carried off the honors of the day in yesterday's contests appeared on the track at daybreak this morning blanketed from head to foot. The losers were caparisoned in the same manner. These noble beasts, instead of being sent around the track at a flying gait as was the case yesterday morning, were walked gently. Little Ruffin, whose absence was particularly noticeable in the race for the January stakes, was one of the earliest risers. As he appeared on the track the lameness which prevented him from keeping Lord Murphy, Good Night and the rest of the noble crew company in yesterday's contest made itself plainly evident, so that his advent in any one of this week's struggles is one of the improbabilities. The many flyers who are to take part in this afternoon's races were out en masse.

Alexander's tall chestnut Janitor looked full of mischief, and although selling away down in the pools, may surprise some of the knowing ones.

King Faro, the favorite for the Association Purse, showed up in excellent form and seemed to delight in showing his heels to Jim Bell and Short Line, who are to bear him company in this afternoon's contest. Largentine, who is the favorite in the mile and three-quarter dash; Gov. Neptune, the favorite in the Greeleystakes; Charlie Howard, Bill Dillon and a host of other flyers went around like greyhounds, all appearing to be in fine trim. This kind of fun was kept up until 7 o'clock, when the threatening clouds which had long hovered over the track and the adjacent country were rent by the thunderclaps and the rain fell in torrents.

The jockeys had anticipated something of the kind, and had secured dry quarters full fifteen minutes before.

The shower lasted nearly an hour and left the track a sea of mud. At its close, however, the sun shone out brightly and old turfmen pronounced the rainfall the best thing that could have happened, as well as predicting that long before starting time it would be as dry as wanted, and in superb condition.

AT THE NOON HOUR

the weather is delightful. The sky overhead is almost cloudless and a cool, exhilarating breeze is blowing from the South. Never since the inauguration of Cote Brilliante as a racing center by the Jockey Club management have the turfmen been more satisfied with the weather king. The heavy rain has served to lay the dust which appeared in such terrible clouds on the roads leading to the track yesterday. The jockeys are smiling. The blue grass gentry, the Louisville sports, the Tennesseeans, the Eastern and California turfmen present all unite in pronouncing St. Louis not such a hot old place after all, while Murphy, the Lexingtonian, is willing to acknowledge that there are some places nearer the sun than St. Louis.

YESTERDAY'S JOCKEYS.

Great interest is being manifested in the rider who piloted Checkmate on to victory yesterday, notwithstanding the fact that this horse sold away down in the pools. The name of this rider is Ike Murphy, and, although the happy possessor of a Hibernian name, is black as midnight, and was born and bred in the Blue Grass regions. He is eighteen years of age, and rides at 105 pounds. His performances are somewhat wonderful, and old turfmen claim that he has the best record of any jockey in the West. At the Lexington meeting he won the Phœnix, the mile and an eighth and the two year old. At Louisville he rode Falsetto in the Derby and secured second place. At the same meeting he rode Fortuna a dead heat against Glenmore, and won the Louisville cup with the same horse. It was he that rode Little Ruffin at Louisville when that gallant flyer captured the Tobacco stakes. At the same place he won the three-quarter dash with Wallenstein, and straddled Falsettto when that thoroughbred captured the Clark stakes. On the same track he won the mile dash with Krupp Gun, the mile heat with King Faro, the three-quarter dash with Egypt, and the Merchants' stakes with Blue Eye. Last, but not by no means least, was his victory in the mile and an eighth dash yesterday with Checkmate.

BILLY O'BRIEN,

who sat Joe Rhodes in such magnificent style in yesterday's hurdle, is a white boy, and comes from Lexington, Kentucky, the home of so many crack riders. Yesterday was the first time he ever strode the winning horse, and his performance stamps him as a good one.

JIM M'LAUGHLIN,

who rode Lord Murphy in a winner for the January stakes, is a New York rider, and won his reputation at Louisville, when he piloted Bramble on to victory and rod three winners in one day. Like Bobby Swim, although comparatively a boy in stature, he has an old head upon his shoulders.

The Scene on the Grounds.

RACE TRACK, 2 p. m.—Already the crowd is gathering, and the prospect of a good attendance and day's sport is a foregone conclusion. The track, although a little heavy, will by starting time be in a superb condition.

The grounds and grand stand are filling up rapidly. The weather is all that could be wished, delightful breezes cooling the air. Opposite the grand stand a goodly array of carriages are already drawn up. The quarter stretch and the pool-sellers' quarters are animated scenes. The gay toilets of the ladies on the stand lend a brightness and picturesqueness to the general panorama. Every one is apparently bent upon enjoyment.

Essilah, one of the favorites, was slaughtered yesterday. Lord Murphy and Joe Rhodes, the other two, came out of the big end of the horn.

Ike Murphy is the name of the little darkey who pilots Little Ruffin. If you ask him if his parents came from Cork, he will answer: “No, massa, from Loosiany.”

The Western Union Telegraph office at the Fair Grounds did nearly twice as much business on the opening day this year as last. Specials were sent from there to all points of the world.

“There is some fun in hurdle races,” said a lady in the grand stand yesterday, while the jockey who was made to bite the dust answered: “It's fun for you, but it's almost death to we fellers.”

Jim McLaughlin, Good Night's rider, is a New York lad. He made his mark at the Louisville meeting, when he straddled three winners in one day. He also piloted Bramble on to victory at the same meet.

The name of Dan Swigert's gallant Mahlstick, who won the Greeeley stakes last year, appears in the list of entries in the race for the same stake to-day. He will not sell in the pools, however; his name is scratched, scratched for time and eternity by the sickle of death. He passed in his checks this spring.

To-Morrow's Programme.

To-morrow will be the “big day” of the race week. Four events are down on the programme, viz.:

Association purse of $500, dash of two miles for all ages; $400 to first and $100 to second.

Garneau Cup—Mile heats, for all ages, $50 entrance, half forfeit; $500 added, of which $100 to second.

Handicap, for all ages, purse $300, dash of one mile; $250 to first and $50 to second.

The last race is the great event of the week. The St. Louis Post Stake for all ages, four mile heats, $100 entrance, p. p., $2,500 added, of which $500 to second, third to save stake.

James, the Pool-Seller.

A warrant was issued this morning for the arrest of N. H. James, the late pool-seller of No. 108 North Fourth street, at the instigation of Larry Kavanaugh, on a charge of assault to kill. It appears that Larry was one of the unfortunates who purchased pools on the races at James's Exchange, and on demanding his winnings last night had a revolver leveled at him and was otherwise mistreated. James is at present in the calaboose of the Four Courts, where he was taken this morning on a charge of disturbing the peace last night at his establishment, but will be transferred to the jail sometime during the day. This morning quite a number of horsemen appeared at the office of the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney for the purpose of swearing out warrants against James, but were undecided as to whether they should be issued under the form of embezzlement, obtaining money under false pretenses, or grand larceny. They have all lost considerable money through buying pools at James' Exchange, but can not determine whether it can be made the basis of a criminal prosecution or not. Various rumors are afloat as to the amount James had in his possession from the sales of pools, but it is thought to exceed $5,000.

James avers that he is willing and can pay the money at the proper time.

ELLIOTT TAKES PLAISTED DOWN.

COURTNEY AND HANLAN.

By Western Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 11.—It is suggested that Courtney in returning to boat-racing should have pitted against him Eph Morris, of Pittsburg, and Wallace Ross rather than Frenchy Johnson, and should he defeat Morris and Ross, then a match with Hanlan, if he defeats Elliott, would be in order and worth seeing.

THE COMING WALK.

An even $200 is bet that Brown's last performance of 541 miles will not be beaten in the forthcoming match, which begins on the 16th of June. The betting is 6 to 4 against Brown, and 2 to 1 against Rowell, in small sums. All the men have been doing good preparatory work.

THE DERBY.

Incidents of Interest on the Course—Sir Bevys and His Jockey—What Palmbearer's Owner Stood to Win.

[From the New York Herald, June 9.]

LONDON, May 29, 1879.—“The way to find ... the judges' board,” ... was never more ... oughly realized than it has been this week in regard to the Derby. A horse hardly noticed captured the stakes without trouble, and there are a good many headaches and heartaches in London to-day in consequence. Again all the sporting prophets are laid out flat, not one of them having predicted the winning of any of the first three horses. The favorites on which these sporting worthies “plumped” were hardly in the race, and Sir Bevys—pronounced Sir Bois—whom none of them considered in the race, carried the colors of the house of Rothschild to victory.

The general characteristics of the day were the same as those of all Derbys; but the fact that this was the centenary of the great race gave an additional interest to the occasion. An ...ually was present, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, the Duke and Duchess of Teck, the Crown Prince of Denmark, and a brilliant party filling the royal box. The Prince of Wales did not look very anxious, and probably had not many “monkeys” on the event, while the Princess, as the ubiquitous and obsequious Cockney reporters put it, “jested and laughed with her husband and brother over the amusing incidents seen among the crowd with a vivacity and enjoyment which was pleasurable to witness.” I believe that is the usual form. In honor of the hundreth Derby, too, the jockeys all wore new jackets and caps, and certainly no prettier sight was ever seen on a race course than these twenty-three horses plunging toward home, sleek, beautiful and full of fire, bearing their gorgeous riders attired in glistening satin of every known color—Lord Rosebery's primrose and rose hooks, Count Lagrave's blue, red sleeves and white cap, Mr. Gretton's orange and purple, Lord Falmouth's white, black sleeves and white cap, Mr. Houldsworth's green and gold and yellow, Rothschild's dark blue and yellow. These are not what our English cousins call “gaudy”—that term is reserved for Mr. Lorillard's colors—but withal they make a very brilliant appearance.

The race has been described amply by telegraph. The favorites had a good start, and Sir Bevys was last to get away.

“JUST FORDHAM'S LUCK,”

groaned a man who had backed the Rothschild horse. “Oh! Georgie, Georgie, how could you! I can never face the missis and the kids after this.” Victor Chief leads a long way, but Cadogan pushes him hard, and then there is another shake of the kaleidoscope. The leaders “shut up” one after another. Palmbearer and Viscounti are fighting it out together as they pass the bell, but suddenly a dark blue jacket on a brown horse comes out of the crowd and flashes past the leaders with a speed and air of freshness that marks him a winner. And then one great cry arises from the excited multitude, “Sir Bevys!” No, not at all. The cry is for George Fordham has won his first Derby, and that seems to be as interesting a fact in this great crowd as the fact that Cadogan and Victor Chief have been beaten. “Fordham's first Derby! Hurrah for George!” and Fordham on Sir Bevys is surrounded by thousands of friends, anxious to shake hands with the plucky rider. This is a curious commentary on the custom that has been gaining ground in England of late years. At one time the great unprofessional public were fond of backing owners, as when the cherry of Sir Joseph Hawley was backed, irrespective of the horse that was to run, so confident were the people in the famous stable. Then it was trainers. The trainer and not the horse was what guided the judgment of a mass of the public. Now it is jockeys. To back a jockey mount is one of the most favorite methods of betting at present.

has a great following, and his backers have had no reason to complain. George Fordham was the first jockey whose mounts secured regular backers, and he had, before yesterday, won everything on the English race-course except the Derby. “The Demon,” as he was years ago dubbed, has had a long and successful career, and this was the only luxury in the jockey's world that had been denied him. He has ridden in nineteen Derbys, but so consistent was his bad luck in this particular race that the fact that he was to ride a certain horse made the superstitious shake their heads. Years passed, and finally Fordham was obliged by ill health to retire. Circumstances forced him to return, and now he has won the prize which is the envy of every jockey in the kingdom.

THE UNIVERSAL VERDICT

is that yesterday's field was the poorest seen in the Derby for years. It was certainly the largest, and the time was the slowest. Financially it was the richest Derby ever run, the winnings being $35,500. Besides this I understand Baron Rotschild stood to win more than $250,000. Sir Bevys, however, is only leased to Baron Leopold de Rothschild by Lord Norreys, who bred the horse, and has a share of the $35,000.

One of the features of the race was the bold bid made by Palmbearer, who ran second. His owner would have won $400,000 had the colt been first instead of second, the odds at starting being 100 to 1.

NEWPORT YACHT CLUB.

The Fleet of Fast Craft at the Famous Seaside Resort—Officers and Club-House.

[From the New York Herald.]

The Newport Yacht Club will formally open the season in about ten days. This club was organized June 15, 1876, the members composing it being gentlemen who come here to spend the summer. The club-room is open about three months in the year. The clubhouse is located near the head of Long Wharf, being in an excellent position, with a large covered piazza, from which a fine view of the harbor is obtained. The wharf in front of the club building is about 300 feet in length. The estimated value of the yachts belonging to the club is about $131,000, this sum being based on what yacht property has recently sold for at public as well as at private sale.

THE FLEET.

The club books show that three large schooners, twelve sloops, twenty-eight catboats and three steamers comprise the fleet. The fastest schooner is the yacht Resolute, owned by A. S. Hatch, of New York, who has recently rented her to a party of New York bankers. The fastest sloop is the Arrow, owned by Mr. Ross R. Winans, of Baltimore, son of the late Thomas Winans, the millionaire inventor and manufacturer, who died in this city a year ago. Two of the other sloops deserve mention on account of their well-known speed. one being the Wayward, belonging to David Sears, of Boston, and the other the Schemer, belonging to Mr. C. S. Lee, of New York. The fastest catboat is the Gleam, 24 feet long, owned by Mr. George L. Gower, Reading Clerk of the Rhode Island House of Representatives. This craft has never been beaten in a time race, and she has won several prizes. The Fidget, 28 feet long, is another of the catboats which has an excellent record. She is owned by Irving Grinnell, Commodore of the New Hamburg (N. Y.) Yacht Club. The Hebe, 24 feet long, belonging to Mr. Richard Youmans, of Newport, has also shown remarkable speed. The Lotty and the Titania, both owned by the commodore of the club, Mr. Samuel F. Pratt, of Boston, have never been beaten in a time race. These peculiar boats have flexible rudders and a very queer-looking rig, the invention of their owner, for the purpose of simplifying the handling of a boat and getting the greatest amount of benefit from the sails. The bowsprit is hinged to the boom, instead of being fastened to the boat, and works around the mast, being always in a line with the boom. The principal advantage of this peculiar rig, the Commodore states, is that when the mainsail is full the jib is also full, whether she be close-hauled or going before the wind. There are no jibsheets to look out for, the jib taking care of itself after it is once hoisted in its place. When the boatman desires to go into a wharf it is but two minutes' work to lower the jib, roll it up, pull out a pin on one side of the bowsprit and swing it on board and fasten it to the boom. After these things are done the craft is virtually turned into a cat-boat. The Titania was taken to Florida last fall by Commodore Pratt, and while there she secured such a reputation for speed that the Committee of the County Fair at Brunswick, Ga., ruled her out, or any other craft with “flexible rudders and fancy jibs.” Ex-Commodore Louis L. Lorillard, of New York, a member of the club, is having a new boiler and engine put into his steamer Ariazelia, at this port. The sloop belonging to Mr. Charles Potter, of Providence, ... cut... some catboat built in New York, which arrived here last week.

OFFICERS.

The officers of the club are as follows: Commodore, S. F. Pratt, of Boston; Vice Commodore, J. V. Mott, of New York; Treasurer, Lieut. Commander E. M. Steadman, United States Navy; Secretary, W. V. Olyphant, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Measurer, Richard Youmans, of Newport.

During the season there will be a large number of races and the prizes to be offered will equal anything which the members have sailed for in the past.

FIRES.

A Large Fire at Jackson, Mich.

By Western Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 11.—A fire at Jackson, Mich., at 8 o'clock this morning, completely destroyed Bennett, Knickerbocker & Co.'s flouring mills, Allen Bennett's planing mills and lumber office, James L. Needen's cigar-box factory, the Smith Purifier Company's factory, Daigs & Son's carpenter shop and five cars of wheat and flour on the side track, the property of Bennett, K. & Co., besides damaging several dwelling houses adjoining. The loss to Bennett, Knickerbocker & Co. is $125,000; insured for $75,000. Allen Bennett loses $25,000; insured for $15,000. Smith Purifier Company's loss is $25,000; insured for $12,000. The box factory and carpenter shop are estimated at $1,000 each, with small insurance. The loss on the dwelling houses is small. The loss to the Michigan Central Railroad on the cars burned is unknown. The fire originated in the engine-room of the planing mill.

New York Burglars Rob and Murder an Old Lady—Criminal Record.

A Hanging Delayed.

By Western Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Judge Dickey, of the State Supreme Court, this morning granted a supersedeas delaying the execution of Jno. Lamb, which was set for the 20th inst., in order that the question of granting a new trial may be considered by the Supreme Court. It is stated that new and important evidence has been discovered which will convict “Sheeney” George of the murder of Officer Race. George, who was concerned in the burglary which resulted in the murder, turned State's evidence and placed the crime at Lamb's door.

Lively Chase After a Burglar.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PACIFIC, MO., June 11.—A burglar, after entering several houses in town, visited that of Mr. Pope, which he rummaged from top to bottom, when his presence was discovered and a shot fired at him as he fled. The members of the family at once organized a pursuit and, getting on his trail, chased him for about a quarter of a mile through streets and alleys until he was brought down by a pistol shot, which took effect in his leg. All the property he took was recovered. He gave the name of Davis.

Burglary and Murder.

By Western Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Mrs. Jane L. D. J. Hull, aged fifty-eight, and wife of Dr. Alonzo J. Hull, was found dead in bed at No. 140 west Forty-second street this morning. Her hands and feet were tied and she was blindfolded. A gag was in her mouth and the trunk at the bedside open and rifled of its contents. An examination of the premises shows that entrance had been effected through the front door, which was open, and all other parts of the house secure. The lady's fingers were badly torn, and her friends say one large diamond ring and one emerald have been taken therefrom. The neighborhood is in a state of the wildest excitement, and the police are without a clue.

The colored servant girl who discovered the body said, about 7 o'clock this morning, she went to her mistress' room to receive her instructions for the day when she found the door open, which was something unusual. On entering the apartment, she saw the body of Mrs. Hull by strips of sheets. Another piece was tied across her eyes and a gag was firmly tied in her mouth; a piece of shawl was strapped around her neck. It is evident that her death had resulted from strangulation, for the shawl was drawn tightly around her neck. On the body were found several contusions and slight wounds, which had been received in the scuffle with the assassins. The lock on the door leading to the bed-room was found to be tampered with, and the front door open. A short time before the murder of Mrs. Hull was brought to light by the servant girl, there were no marks found on the door, and on that account the police suppose that the entrance was effected by means of false keys. The murder and robbery was done, it is thought, some time during the night, for when the body was found it was quite cold.

ONE OF THE CHAMBERMAIDS

who passed the night in a room near the one in which Mrs. Hull was murdered was awakened during the night by a scream, but was unable to say at what hour it was. She paid no attention to the noise, thinking some one had nightmare. When the people in the neighborhood learned of the crime a large crowd gathered, and a detachment of police was needed to preserve order.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—At a meeting of the House Judiciary Committee to-day, Chairman Knott submitted his report on the message of the President vetoing the bill to prevent military interference with elections. After the reading of the document a discusion arose during which the Republican members gave assurance that they would not object to the presentation of the Report to the House for the purpose of having it printed and recommended, the idea of desiring this procedure being to afford the minority an opportunity to prepare a statement embracing their views upon the veto in question.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11.—Consideration was resumed of the McDonald bill to authorize the use of troops in certain cases and repeal certain election laws.

Mr. Hill began a speech on the bill by saying that he intended to reply to certain personal allusions but not to retaliate nor to make a personal attack on any Senator.

Mr. Hill said his vote in the Georgia convention was against secession, but the secession resolution was adopted by the convention, and after that it was only a question whether the citizens of the State should uphold its solemn action in convention. He therefore signed the ordinance of secession after its passage, as did all his colleagues, though one-half of the members voted with him against it.

Mr. Stephens, from the Coinage Committee, reported a bill for the adoption of the metric system of weights, measures and coinage. It was ordered printed and recommitted.

Mr. Carlisle, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported the Senate bill allowing vinegar factories which were established and operated before March 1, '79, to continue their business by the use of alcoholic vapor, even when within 600 feet of a distillery or rectifying house, as is prohibited by the existing law under regulations to be prescribed. The bill passed.

THE EMPEROR'S GOLDEN WEDDING.

By Cable to Western Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 11.—This city was in its holiday attire yesterday in honor of the Emperor's golden wedding, which will be further observed to-day. Special sentry boxes flank the doors of the Embassies, palaces and hotels to announce the arrival of distinguished guests and afford them the honors usually accorded, while uniforms of foreign colors mingle with the dark Prussian blue, and orderlies dash to and fro amid the curious crowds who delight to watch the immense stream of brilliant equipages on the Linden. The populace have laid regular siege to and whoever enters or emerges is greeted with a volley of huzzahs. The chief buildings have been draped or hung with greenery, and the streets flutter with streamers and flags. Illuminative devices have been affixed here and there, ready to burst out this evening into flaming monograms, eagles, portraits and other compliments to the imperial pair. All day yesterday the streets were blue with the modest corn-flower, a favorite plant of the Emperor's, and at every corner portraits and biographies of the monarch and his consort were for sale, the Grub street bards of Berlin putting forth all their powers to tempt passers-by. Laureled busts of

are in every house and their portraits hang in every window. Their names are mentioned with honor by every tongue, and the only regret heard is that fuller scope has not been given for a display of the popular loyalty. But affection can ill be taught restraint. In all parts of the empire addresses are voted by the provincial assemblies, municipalities and universities, and the day is taking the character of a universal festival. Newspapers of every description unite in expressing undivided love for and allegiance to the revered monarch. Berlin, even yesterday, was rapidly filling with all kinds of visitors.

AMONG THE DISTINGUISHED ARRIVALS up to yesterday morning were the royal family of Saxony; the Grand Dukes Alexis and Michael of Russia; the ducal families of Baden, Mecklenburg Schwerin and Mecklenburg Strelitz; Prince Frederick of the Netherlands; Prince Ornulph, of Bavaria; the hereditary Prince and Princess of Hohenzollern, and the Duke of Edinburgh.

In to-day's procession of princes and potentates from the White Hall to the Castle Chapel and back, as regulated by the Imperial order, the Duke of Edinburgh will give his arm to the Grand Duchess of Saxony; Grand Duke Alexis comes after with the Princess Maria, of Anhalt, wife of Prince Frederick Charles, of Prussia; at two removes further will follow Grand Duke Michael, the brother of the Czar, with the Princess Louise, of Prussia.

THE EMPEROR.

Though very well in general health the Emperor William has not entirely recovered from his recent accident, which, though slight, injured one of his knees, and he will neither walk nor stand during the procession.

UNPRECEDENTED GRANDEUR.

The bank of the Rhine and the adjacent hills were lighted by bonfires last night, on the left bank from Bingenbruck to Rolandseck, and on the right bank from Ettille to the Seven Hills fires were lighted at 9 and kept burning along the whole distance of sixty miles. The unprecedented grandeur of this demonstration has attracted a large number of strangers to the Rhine Valley.

BLANQUI'S PARDON.

A Man of Many Prisons.

[From the New York Herald.]

M. Louis Auguste Blanqui, the veteran conspirator and leader of the proletariat, has been accorded a pardon. The success of M. Blanqui's friends is virtually the result of an alibi. Their arguments are based on what they claim to be notorious facts. It will be remembered that M. Blanqui was sentenced to death by the Government of National Defense in February, 1871, but he escaped. The next heard of him was his arrest by the succeeding government on March 17 at his sister's house at Bretonoux, Department of the Lot. As the Commune did not break out until March 18, he, being in prison, could not have been actively engaged in it. Legally speaking, he was therefore unconnected with the revolt, and should have been either shot in accordance with the sentence of February, 1871, or let alone. Keeping in view, however, that the Government of National Defense had been declared to be a revolutionary authority by the succeeding government, the latter was estopped from either confirming the judgment of that body or prosecuting a man for having opposed its illegal authority. These are the logical and, if accurate in all respects, conclusive arguments of M. Blanqui's friends, who, headed by M. Clemenceau, have achieved success at last.

[The Petite Republique publishes a list of the prisons in which Blanqui has spent the greater part of his life. It styles its article, "The Way of the Cross Traversed by M. Blanqui," and says: "Here are the stations of the aged republican:" 1. Depot of the Prefecture (Paris); 2. La Force (Paris); 3. Sainte-Pelagie (Paris); 4. La Conciergerie (Paris); 5. Remarkable Fossil Tracks.

In the early summer of 1877, as Mr. Jacob Lower, of Ellsworth, whose farm is on the town line joining on the west line of Canfield, Mahoning county, was clearing off the dirt from a large bed of sandstone for the purpose of quarrying stone for a building, he came upon what appeared to him to be several rows of the tracks of some gigantic animal. Not being a geologist, he could not make out what it all meant. He related the thing to Wm. Wetmore, and Mr. Wetmore, as soon as he saw me, said that he thought it might be something worth looking after, and we had better go out there and see about it. When we got there we found that a large portion of the tracks—for tracks they were, and no mistake about it—had been quarried out, but the blocks lay there and the tracks were on them, and the most of them were yet whole. The rock is the common sandstone, from which is taken all of our building stone, and lies immediately over the coal seam that is called No. 4, and is the rock that runs through the tops of all the low hills in this vicinity. Denudation has been doing a great work hereabouts and has cut through and through this rock, making many long and narrow valleys, and it is only where the rock was harder that it has withstood the denuding action, and these places are these hills, and they are rounded off so that the rock slopes in all directions from the top. These tracks are on the west side of these rounded-off hills, and the rock is planed down quite smooth.

The animals were all going to the east, up the slope of the rock, and their tracks were all ... several ... was ... a calf in this ... of cows walking ... wed field ever left more ... tracks. The tracks were mostly ... two inches deep. But as there had been some planting done after they were made, they were in some places worn off some. Where the rock was not much worn, the mark of the fetlock or dew-claw appendage to the ankle was very distict, and looked just as if the end of a finger had been pressed in a little way, and there being only one, and that in the middle of the foot, showed the animal to be a solid-hoofed animal and not a cloven-hoofed one. There were no indications of any toes or of anything of the kind.

One track was full of very hard clay, and I succeeded in getting it out whole and the cast was just like the end of a pestle. The length of the step I forgot to measure, but it was some four or five feet. For the length of the step of all animals we have very nearly the length of the leg. I was sorry that I forgot to get that measure, but I will get it when I examine the place again, as I intend to do soon. This description of the tracks themselves I think is sufficient for the present; but now comes up the question, What animal was it that made these tracks? To persons not posted in fossil geology, this might seem a hard question to answer. But not to those who have made these things a study.

Of all the gigantic animals that have lived on the earth previous to man very few of them, indeed, have solid hoofs or are "solipeda," as they are called. They are almost all either cloven-footed or with toes or claws—some very long claws; as the megalonyx, that is long-...wed. The most of those that are large ...ough to make such tracks are either cloven-...ofed or have three toes. So we have a very ...mited number to select from. About eighty ...ears ago there was taken from an ice bank on ...e coast of Siberia an animal that was in so ...ell preserved a condition, that we can see ...st what kind of feet he had, and his feet ...ould make just such a track as those on these ...ocks, and that animal was the same animal that roamed over the country and left his bones here and there, which we now dig up and call them mammoth bones.—[Canfield (Ohio) Correspondence of Hartford Times.

The most interesting portion of the correspondent's narrative, however, relates to Oham's wives. He says: "Oham's kraal is occupied by the thirty wives and seventy concubines who form his neat little traveling retinue. How Garibaldi Rules Caprera.

[From the London T...th, May 29..]

He is absolute lord of that little island, and, if the truth must be told, governs it despotically. The rights of conscience are understood by few persons out of Great Britain or ...United States, and no one need be sur-...hear that Garibaldi allows no priests on the island. A peasant could not receive the last sacrament if so unfortunate as to die at Caprera. Similarly, during the period of his French command, he showed himself singularly, and, one might add, wantonly, intolerant. At Dijon he turned the nuns out of a convent to find quarters for his troops, which, possibly, he had a right to do; but he added the gratuitous affront of ordering them to be dressed in secular garb previously to being sent to their respective homes.

A few facts more to his credit. He is essentially "a good fellow;" to friends, kindly, gentle, generous, withal frugal. An Englishman should make the acquaintance of a Nizzan if he would understand what thrift is. A gentleman I knew was once talking to Garibaldi, when the latter took out his cigar-case and proffered it. A cigar having been accepted, Garibaldi took out another, deftly broke it in half, and restored one portion to the case: the remaining half he lit, and composedly proceeded to smoke. "All I have left of my country," he added, with a mournful smile—for the tobacco was Nizzan-grown.

A Naughty Man and a Nice Girl.

[From the Whitehall Review, May 31.]

A friend of mine coming from New York lately was a fellow-passenger with a Yankee who never, by any chance, except when he was eating or sleeping, had a cigar out of his mouth.

"I have seen a good many smokers," said my friend to this individual, "but I never saw such an incurable chimney as you are."

"Yes," was the reply, "I am fond of my Havana. I can't live without my Havana, and I have left instructions that one is to be put into my coffin when I die."

"And," interjected another Yankee of the party, "I guess you won't have to go far for a light, anyhow!"

This anecdote being repeated in the presence of two specimens of the rising female generation, one evidently enjoyed it, but the other looked very solemn indeed. When they got together out of the room she of the serious turn of mind said to her companion:

"That was a very naughty tale that your uncle told. I know that there are all sorts of nice things in heaven, but I am sure there are no cigar-lights there."

A right-minded child, that.

The School Board.

The School Board met last night, President Richeson in the chair.

The attorney of the board reported that he had brought suits against Krieger's bondsmen for the balance due the school fund.

The Secretary read a letter from President Richeson, resigning as President and as Director.

A long discussion arose about drawing in the schools. The matter was finally referred to the Committee on Course of Study.

Mr. Cupples, from the Salary Committee, made a report recommending that the salaries of the assistant principles of the high schools be $1,700, $1,800, $1,900 and $2,000 respectively; that the salaries of the paid K. G. assistants, half-day, be $250, $275, $300, $325, $350; that the salaries of German-English teachers be the same as other teachers the same rank; and that the balance of the salaries be the same as last year. Adopted.

A committee was appointed to examine into the correctness of the report that J. Phil. Krieger, Sr., holds the notes of a member of the Board for $2,000.

The Board soon after adjourned.

A Story of Grant.

A good story is told of General Grant. He met and recognized a gentleman on Pennsylvania avenue one day, whom he had not seen for years. The gentleman, who was distinguished for dirty ruffled shirts and collars, was so much gratified by the recognition that he related the circumstance to a friend, who in turn told the President how much the recognition had been appreciated. But the General could not recollect the individual till his dirty-shirt habit was mentioned, when he quietly remarked, "Oh, yes; I always wonder who wears his shirts the first day."—[Cincinnati Commercial.

SUMMER TRAVEL.

The Bellefontaine Horse Railroad is now open to the Water Tower. The running time from the Great Bridge to the Water Tower is thirty-five minutes. The road is furnished with open summer cars, chair seats, all seats front... ward. The height of the Water Tower is 175 feet from the base, being the highest Roman Corinthian tower in the world. From the ground, about one hundred yards northeast of the Water Tower, can be had a view of the Mississippi River for fifteen miles. At Water Tower Heights the ground is One Hundred Feet Above the City Directrix, and on account of the great elevation and moisture absorbed by the atmosphere from the water, the atmosphere of a summer's evening upon Water Tower Heights is quite similar to that on the shores of Lake Superior. To those who desire fresh, cool air of a summer's evening, Water Tower Heights is the Finest Suburban Resort around the city. Parties from the West End, via Lindell or Citizens' Road, will change cars at Eleventh St.

Kindergarten Exercises.

Now comes the witching time of year when school yards yawn and sweet girl graduates in golden hair clothe themselves in white tulle and gorgeous imagery and collate new data in all the wide fields of science and research; when young collegians are pasing before large mirrors and uttering elevated sentiments about The Gracchi or The pre-Raphaelite in Mrals.

School commencements are generally entertaining on several grounds: nobody goes, usually, unless they have some young friend in whose triumphs they can in a measure share, and, if one does go in a disinterested and casual manner, the consolations of philosophy and the pleasures of memory blend themselves into a most pleasing effect. These young gentlemen, who will graduate in the course of the next two weeks, will probably all, during the summer vacation, write long essays to each other addressed, "Henry O'Leander, Esq., A. B.," and look for the some kind of thing in return. But they will get over all that, and, by the time they get all their angles rubbed smooth, they may become very useful members of society. The young ladies, too, will learn and unlearn a great many things in the course of the next two years which will have a most pleasant result.

Some of the more pleasant commencements are the kindergartens, which are now closing for the summer vacation. Everybody has general ideas about kindergartens, they know that the little ones go there and have an excellent and healthy old time of it, but just how and just what the children do, are in a measure unknown.

To-day the kindergartens at the Ames School on Thirteenth and Hebert streets and the Bates School on Collins and Bates streets are going through their annual fete.

AT THE AMES' GARTEN,

where Miss Shirley is director, and Misses Richeson and Thompson are assistants, the exercises were particularly good.

The programme for the morning had not been made out, but was said to be almost identical with that of the evening, which runs as follows: Prayer, "Now We Meet With Cheerful Faces." Hymn, "All Things Bright and Beautiful." Song, "Birdie's Call." Other songs will be introduced at this point, and will be followed by a number of games, among which the most noticeable are "River," "Fishes," "Bread-making," "Wheelbarrow," "Cuckoo."

"Cuckoo" was being played while the reporter was present this morning and a very pretty game it is. The children ranged themselves around the room; in the center was the graceful superintendent, Miss Shirley, who placed a small chair before her and called a wee maiden, who came and sat down. Then a diminutive gentleman upon whose silvered head the frosts of at least four winters had cast their snows. The little lady bid the bo...'s eyes and another young one went off and ...d behind a steam register. Mrs. Cuthbert's Seminary.

A large and select audience, numbering some of our city's most prominent and fashionable people, assembled last evening in the ...ous hall of Mrs. Cuthbert's famous seminary for young ladies, on the corner of Sixteenth and Pine streets, to enjoy the literary and social entertainment of the Alumnæ Association. The room was tastefully decorated with pictures, banners and flowers, over which a classic halo was thrown by the Latin class-mottoes in evergreen letters on the walls. But banners and pictures and flowers faded to nothingness as decorations beside the beauteous young faces that shone radiant with the light of life's roseate morning-time all over platform and hall.

On the stage, amid a profusion of rare plants, rich in foliage and bloom, were grouped Misses Susie Slayback, Fannie Samuel, Lizzie Sloan, Jennie Sowers, Blanche Eddy, Julia Wilgus, Lucy Harris, Alice Hall, Gussie Evans, Belle McMath, Lizzie Glenn and Ida Downs. In the center of the lovely semicircle sat Miss Eugie Cuthbert, who presided with much grace and dignity for one so young. On the extreme left, with a background of palmetto, cactus and twining roses, sat Rev. Dr. Rutherford, of the Pine Street Presbyterian Church, while Rev. Dr. Westwood, of Rock Island, acted as his vis-a-vis at the extreme right of the line.

The charmed circle was broken by two vacant chairs, which were draped in mourning and wreathed with immortelles, a beautiful and touching tribute to the memory of two of the fair young sisterhood who have gone above.

The programme was short and in exquisite taste, embracing a number of literary and musical gems. The exercises opened with an appropriate prayer by Dr. Rutherford, which was followed by one of Julia Rive-King's showy concert caprices, performed in Chas. Kunkel's most lightning-fingered style. Then came one of the crowning features of the evening, the poem by Miss Blanche Eddy, a sweet, rhyming injunction to seek the rare but modest flower, contentment. The rhythm was musical, the sentiment delicate and pure and the reading admirable, eliciting enthusiastic applause.

Miss Pike sang "Why are Roses Red?" in such a manner as to please her audience and draw from some special admirer a handsome basket of flowers; and Mr. D. F. Colville, our popular baritone, followed with a solo which was received with round after round of applause.

The address to the Alumnæ Association by Dr. Westwood was brief, practical and orthodox, down on woman's rights, but rearing a high ideal of woman's duties, recognizing her full equality with man, but holding that her highest and noblest sphere of usefulness is in the Christian home. The Doctor was frequently interrupted by outbursts of approval from his hearers.

"Ernani," magnificently sung by Miss Cora Carpenter, securing a beautiful floral tribute and a rousing encore, and a brilliantly executed piano solo, by Miss Lillie McEwing, closed the performance, to which Dr. Rutherford added the benediction.

The audience then repaired to the parlors, where refreshments were served, and a delightful social reunion followed, the party separating about half-past 11.

sign of the Washington University will miss a genuine treat. The progress made by the school in the eighteen months of its existence is really wonderful. During the last year over 400 students have attended, and much very good work has been accomplished. The people of St. Louis really do not comprehend what an excellent art school they have in their midst. They perhaps do not know that the Department of Art and Design of Washington University now ranks higher than any similar school in the United States, except that of Boston. A report just published concerning the Cincinnati School of Design, which has proved a great success, gives the school here the first place in the country, and on to-morrow there will be here a Committee of Inspection from Cincinnati to examine the exhibits no... at Washington ... have been donated ...school of Art and Design fully $120,000 in money and art works. This, however, is not an endowment. This last is what this department of the university stands most in need of. When that is secured, there will be nothing to prevent a most gratifying success. As it is now, students who go there must pay their tuition, and many who have genius cannot afford the expense. The day is longed for when by the generosity of some good man the course of instruction shall be free to every deserving boy or girl.

The School of Art and Design is intended to combine the useful with the ornamental, and the preliminary steps taken differ in no respect from those taken to gain excellence in pure art. The course of study is the result of personal examinations in the various schools of art, schools of design and industrial art schools of England and France, as well as those of America. A person pursuing such a course will be well fitted for an architect, a teacher, or be enabled to enter upon a thorough course of art study as a profession. There is work enough laid out in the course to keep a student seven years working from one to two hours a day, but it is hardly expected that any one student will undertake all this. It only shows the completeness and thoroughness of the department.

There are now on exhibition over 800 exercises, all the work of students who have come into the school at various times during the last eighteen months, and who began with the rudiments. When the short period of instruction and training are taken into the account, many of these exercises are really wonderful. There are numerous samples from every stage, from the simplest linear drawing by the aid of instruments to painting and free-handed technical and miscellaneous studies. It may not be as imposing a gallery as some, but it is exceedingly interesting and full of surprises to those who know that the teaching of art in St. Louis is but in its early infancy. Here at a glance you see the broad and solid foundation for a glorious future, not only for St. Louis but for the whole continent and the whole world. It is but the budding promise of what the older countries have long exclusively enjoyed, to the envy of the more vigorous people of the United States. Of course the efforts made by the students at painting and drawing directly from life and still subjects excite the most interest, for here there is expected to be found the revelation of genius in its highest and noblest development, as well as the practical result of the teacher's work. In making sketches from natural scenery, the pupils are allowed to go out, and make their own selection of subjects and do their work without the aid of a teacher. When they have got a piece ready they bring it into the school and there have it criticised.

Some of these bits of painting are really excellent and betray at once more than ordinary ability. Among these may be mentioned a deck-hand or steamboat roustabout, painted from life by J. H. Fry. The coloring is good, the figure is well drawn, and the general expression admirable. This was done by a youth who has been studying only eighteen months. Jas. Barnsby has a picture of a German housemaid that is very strong, and Chas. H. Hallowell has a similar piece of unquestioned excellence. The head of a Turk, a charcoal drawing, by Miss Lizzie Sylvester, is remarkably well done, as is also a head of Ajax by the same talented young lady. An autumn sketch by young Hallowell would do credit to an artist of much greater pretensions, and Mr. Tom Young has a still life study which is quite surprising for its freshness. Miss Lucy Spillman has a piece, in oil, representing and owl, some old books and a bunch of flowers, taken from the things as they were and done most admirably for a beginner.

Many of the charcoal sketches of classic forms and heads as well as those from living models were made in an hour's time and show wonderful aptness. It would be impossible in the space of a short account such as this must be to give a fair conception of the progress made by the pupils. There are hundreds of fine specimens of wood carving, architectural drawings, original designs and mechanical drawings. The Washington University School of Art and Design is a great institution and marks the progress being made in the work of educating the young.

Prof. Halsey C. Ives, who has charge of the School of Art and Design, is doing a work that will live in the generations to come.

Oil on Fire at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—About 11 o'clock to-day lightning struck the large warehouse at the oil works of Warden, Frew & Co., at Point Breeze, and the entire building was soon in flames. The fire spread so rapidly that the whole neighborhood is endangered. The dwelling houses fronting the works are now in flames, and the shipping in the Schuylkill River is burning fiercely. Owing to its distance from the city, the telegraph office being burned, no definite information can be obtained. The latest dispatch said seven vessels were burning and many others in imminent peril.

FINANCIAL.

The usual summer dullness prevails in monetary circles, yet, taking the time of year into consideration, business was very fair and of a good average. The call for discounts was light, offerings consisting of general business paper, shipping, carrying and business names. Considerable currency is just now being sent into the country, mainly in small bills, and presumably to meet the wheat harvest. Otherwise there was no trade with the country to speak of. Counter transactions right good in both checking and deposits. Securities quiet and expected to remain so during the balance of this week. Some few sales of gas stock and Kansas Pacifics were made—latter firm. Also some inquiry for North Missouri firsts, but with no resultant sales. At the banks Eastern exchange was firm at par to 50 cents premium; sales at the outside and demand fair.

CATTLE—Up to the hour of noon transactions in the different departments of the cattle market slow and of a moderate character. Offerings fair, some 150 car loads, and this comprised all grades from common to good natives and grass Indians and Texans. The attendance of the different classes of buyers was fair, and some of them exhibited some desire to operate, but were in no great hurry, but they will not postpone active operations later than this afternoon. Yesterday afternoon the market was slow and the supply light and mainly of common and medium grades. Business this forenoon entirely in butcher stuff and to local dealers, the buyers of the canning company and interior shippers. There is not the least doubt but that Eastern shippers will enter the market to some extent this afternoon, as this is one of their regular market days. The reports from Chicago, New York and other points fair. The supply of grass Indians and Texans large, and they were slow in going off except the good fat grades. Stock and feeding steers slow and unchanged. Veal calves quiet. Ruling quotations weak.

Supply light, and as the reports from Chicago were quite favorable to the buying interest, shippers and packers entered the market early and quickly exhausted the supply at advances of 10@15c per 100 lbs. on all grades. Yorkers and Baltimores and heavy hogs brought $3 40@3 65 per 100 lbs, the bulk of the sales being made at $3 50@3 55 per 100 lbs. Light shipping likewise found prompt disposal at strong prices. proved, and ... thumping, boxing, ear-pulling and other feminine punishments had been rigorously put down. That would be a gain worthy of a year's effort, but we are not able to chronicle anything of the kind.

THE New York Sun published on Monday a letter from Francis Reed Porter, nominating our distinguished fellow citizen Thomas Allen for the Presidency, and stating, in strong and glowing language, the many claims of Mr. Allen for that exalted position. Mr. Porter, however, is inaccurate in one or two trifling points—not in stating that "in 1872 he was elected president of the University Club, a powerful organization made up of dilettanti and litterateurs," for in 1872 Thomas Allen was elected president of the University Club, and the University Club is a powerful organization made up of dilettanti and litterateurs, but in saying, "He is now re-building, with his own means, the Southern Hotel." Mr. Allen is not rebuilding any hotel with his own means, but he is rebuilding a hotel partly with his own means and partly with a subsidy of $125,000, contributed by citizens who were under the impression that the new hotel was to be called the New Southern, and who probably would not have contributed so liberally if they had known that their subscriptions were to be used for the glorification of Thomas Allen.

THE OLD REBEL YELL.

The Globe-Democrat this morning, announcing its allegiance to the Foster ticket in Ohio, piously declares that it wants to "put an end to the 'old rebel yell' by the election of 1880." Does it indeed? The old rebel yell is its sole political capital, its outfit, stock in trade, furniture, fixtures, assets and good will. Without the old rebel yell it could not keep the party together between elections, and if it did not set up the yell at least once a month the timid and honest souls of the party would be in danger of believing that the war was over and the country at peace.

The old rebel yell is now very old indeed. In the mouths of those who sounded it with a meaning it has ceased to be heard for more than fourteen years, and it is now heard only in the mouths of sanctimonious patriots of the Republican persuasion who use it for the basest and most malignant purposes. Outside of the columns of the New York Tribune, the Chicago Tribune, the Commercial and the Gazette of Cincinnati, and the Globe-Democrat and the stalwart papers nobody ever sounds the "old rebel yell." Nobody ever thinks of it, nobody remembers it, nobody ever dreams of it.

The Republicans now have a monopoly of the yell as they have a monopoly of the sectionalism, hatred and partisanship of the country. They hate the South merely because it does not share in their political opinions, insult it and persecute it, misrepresent it, rejoice in its misfortunes and obstruct its prosperity. All their bitterness, ...red and insolence, however, can not stir ... to repeat the old rebel yell, but the sound is still kept up by just such patriotic journals as the Globe-Democrat for their own advantage and profit. We shall believe that the G.-D. wishes to put a stop to the old rebel yell when it puts a stop to it in its own columns.

THAT SOUTHERN ASS.

General Morgan having made precisely the speech wanted by the Republican demagogues in the North and sure to do the South more injury than forty speeches of Blaine and Chandler, it is refreshing to see the alacrity with which our venerable contemporary the Republican rushes to its defense: "If the Southern people," it says, "showed no respect for 'the lost cause,' and denounced it as the sum of all iniquities; if they branded themselves and their dead as traitors, and crawled in the dirt to the feet of the North as miserable suppliants—they could not be trusted to do what they have solemnly promised to do." Nobody expects Southern people to do anything of the kind. That is not the question at all. Common interest and common sense teach that national harmony, patriotism, love of country and fraternal relations are impossible until "bygones" are really "bygones," until the dead are really dead, until politics turn upon new issues, not the passions and hatreds of the late war. Whoever tears open these terrible but healing wounds is, in our opinion, unpatriotic and contemptible. We have said that dozens of times, when the Zach Chandlers and Blaines appealed for the war feeling of the North. We shall say so as promptly when an ass like Senator Morgan foolishly does the same in the South—does what we feel certain every sensible Southern man must regret and disapprove. No honest Union man or patriotic American expects the Southern people to "crawl in the dirt" and make humiliating confessions. We want them simply to keep quiet, say nothing about the past, and let it be forgotten. Good tact and good sense both teach that this is a delicate subject upon which the less said the better for the South. But what does Mr. Morgan say—Mr. Morgan who is a Senator of the United States from the South? "The demand of the South was simply that these rights and guarantees should be faithfully observed. 'They made no aggression upon the legal, moral, social or political rights of any other section or State. Nothing that they demanded was liable to just censure."

This is simply a lie, and all the more unpardonable because its author wrote it out carefully and did not utter it in the heat of debate, but went hundreds of miles out of his way and out of the Senate to utter it. Whatever the provocation might have been, the fire upon Fort Sumter and the deliberate opening of the civil war did not come from the North, and to say, at this day, that, though the South rushed into war and tried to break up the Union, it "made no aggression upon the legal, moral, social or political rights of any other section," is simply preposterous.

Again Mr. Morgan says: "It was their homes and their wives and children and friends that were their [the unknown dead's] stake in the war. Their homes they defended against desecration; their wives and ... against insult and humiliation; their friends against wrong and injustice, and their country against invasion. For these they died. This is the whole story." But it is not the whole story by any means. If this painful subject must be discussed it must be distinctly understood that those men, with the highest respect for their conviction, fought in a war against their country, caused by themselves and solely out of supposed danger to the institution of slavery, not liberty as Mr. Morgan claims. But slavery is the very opposite of liberty, is not the opposite of but "wrong and injustice" itself.

And again he says: "After the American people shall have realized that the true principles of liberty, as they are written in our great organic law, were in fact defended by the sacrifices and sufferings of our Confederate dead, they will visit this spot as a shrine of liberty, and will here contemplate the value of truth and justice in the conduct of government, in the light of a great and pure example."

So that the rebellion was simply a war for liberty, for "truth and justice," for the "Constitution of the United States," (for this Mr. Morgan must mean by "our great organic law) and a great and pure example!" Are we to understand that this "great and pure example" is to be held up for the future for possible imitation? If it was such a "great and pure example," such a heroic and righteous war, those engaged in it cannot regret it. Nor can they ever look upon their past course even as a mistake if they believe in Mr. Morgan. He makes any misunderstanding impossible. If the rebellion was a struggle for liberty and against injustice, or for the principles of the Constitution of the United States, not their destruction; if it was a "great and pure example," regret for it by any participant is impossible, and only a repetition or imitation of it possible. Does the Republican mean this? It says:

Speeches like that of Morgan may not be particularly pleasant to Northern ears, but they are at least free from hypocrisy and deceit; and, rightly viewed, they are an assurance of fidelity to the Union far stronger and more reliable than could be given by words in full harmony with Northern sentiment.

This is phenomenal logic. We suppose the Republican will next define an "example" as a thing which is not to be followed under any circumstances, and a "great and pure example" as a thing which is sincerely regretted by those who set it and call it "great and pure!"

The uncompromising and plainspoken opposition of the POST-DISPATCH to the despicable policy of Republican Hateites who want to perpetuate the terrible memories of the civil war and make a real peace and a real Union impossible has sometimes been misinterpreted into an organship par excellence of Southern feeling and Southern interests. We frankly confess that to us the course of the South, upon the whole, seems without a single parallel in history for the moderation, forbearance, fortitude, good sense, patriotism and aptitude for local self-government displayed since the war. To-day we consider the South as the great conservative factor in our politics. We have been called extreme because we sincerely believe that, as a rule, the Confederates are now better Union men than Republican stalwarts, and because the danger to the Union now comes from the North and the Republican rebels who howl for Grant, a third term and a military, strong, centralized, imperial Republic. But we are equally sincere and equally plainspoken in denouncing foolish utterances and dangerous sentiments, whether they come from the South or the North, whether they are made by a Republican or a Democratic Senator. And if Mr. Morgan believes what he said he is a fool. If he does not, he is a knave. Possibly he is a little of both, and Southern papers should be first to tell him so.

The crowning beauty of the summer time, with the youth of the land at least, is the joy it brings into their hearts and the light it sends dancing into their eyes when the joyful announcement is made of the approach of vacation days. Its bright skies and green fields, its laughing flowers and listening breezes, are only poetical myths to childhood when compared with the summer freedom that is characteristic of the couple of months that follow the close of each scholastic year. To the younger classes of school children this vacation means only a bright oasis in the long journey towards complete scholarship; but to the older participants in the pilgrimage, and especially those who are within sight of the minarets of that Mecca towards which they have been tramping for years, it is a harbinger of the supremest happiness, and the joy that lights their anticipations may be taken as the bright dawn of a new life. The grammar class boy or girl, however, as well as the High School graduate, both look forward to the time with the wildest imaginings of all the good it is to be productive of—the former seeing through an almost endless vista of rollicking sport and innocent amusement, while the latter pictures the thronged hall, the crowded stage, rustling with white silk, and musical with the patter of satin slippers; the successful essay at a first public appearance on any stage; the shower of rich floral tributes, and the final overwhelming congratulations of friends. This time has now approached, to-day being the golden gate to the paradise of annual school pleasures. The streets this morning bore an unusually gay appearance, especially in the vicinity of the various public schools whose closing exercises were announced for to-day. Earlier than usual the school-children were abroad, and there was no seeking the longest way around either to get to their respective institutions. Boys and girls alike were decked out in their finest clothes. The former in almost every instance wearing button-hol[e bouq]uets in the lapels of their jacket... ings int... some favored sch... parents might be seen journeying ... direction, and at 9 o'clock the school-rooms, each crowded with gleeful children and proud and interested fathers and mothers, began to ring out in joyful music, the signal that the exercises had begun. Then the faces that had borne every evidence of intense satisfaction when seen in the street, a short time before, glowed with renewed radiance, for all appeared to know and feel that the eyes of the community were on them, and that the POST-DISPATCH would record their successes in the best style that it knew how. The class-rooms were all decorated in a handsome manner, the black-boards being ornamented with various drawings, and some of the rooms decorated with evergreens and flowers. Not a few of the teachers had put forth extraordinary efforts in fixing up their rooms, and the commendable spirit of friendly rivalry that actuated them resulted in some very gorgeous and elegant decorations.

The programme everywhere was of the usual mixed character, songs, recitations, examinations and premium distributions being mingled in pleasant order, and everywhere the performances were excellent and the pupils came in for generous praise. It was a very pleasing sight when the exercises were through to see the children run to their parents with the trophies of the year's successes in their studies and receive their congratulations, and in the parting that took place between pupils and teachers there was also much to be admired. When all was over and the crowd poured out of the buildings many must have regretted, although they had fondly prayed for and anxiously looked forward to vacation, that the gap had at last come in their school days, and that for two months, which now seem long, but which when over they will think the shortest and most fleeting they ever spent, friends and class-mates will be separated from each other with a possibility that they may never meet again.

The St. Louis public schools have a national reputation for the success that attends their management and for the lasting benefits that accrue to their pupils, and these closing exercises each year are a source of pride to teachers and parents as they are of gratification to the pupils. The exercises this year have been as flattering as in previous years, and there is every reason that the same judicious commendation heretofore extended should be here extended again. Pupils, teachers and the school management generally have the heartiest congratulations of the POST-DISPATCH upon the grand success that attended to-day's exercises.

The Benton School.

This popular school under the able management of Mrs. Jordan has had an extremely successful year. While the number on the role has never been oppressively large, still 850 children are about enough for any lady to manage, and that Mrs. Jordan has been so successful redounds greatly to her credit.

The blackboards throughout the building are very handsomely decorated with original designs by the scholars and the teachers. Miss Matthews, the preceptress in No. 7, has done especially well in this regard. A little child, Lizzie Ravold, was reciting a declamation when the reporter entered the room, and although the room was crowded with visitors, she was perfectly self-possessed and easy. Rooms Nos. 11 and 12, under the care of Misses Clements and Dickson, were visited. These two fair teachers, especially Miss Clements, deserve more than ordinary congratulation for the results they have obtained. Special praise is due to Jenny Zaccarini, Freddie Law, Joe Mesmer, Mamie Cella, Frank Harris, Annie Deike, Emma Betke, Lizzie Terry, and Emma Anton for the excellent rendition of their speeches. Susie Weimer, as a vocalist, is something wonderful for so small a child, and Emma Locke gave "Mother Goose" to perfection. Mother Goose en costume rendered by several of the smallest pupils showed careful study and drilling by the teacher. The finest exercise at the Benton, by all means, was the calisthenics, in charge of Miss Slater. This energetic young lady has had her class under such thorough drill that they seem to go through the most difficult evolutions with the precision of clock work. Specimens of the caligraphy, both German and English, were also on exhibition, and were very fine.

Peabody School.

This school is situated at the corner of Second Carondelet avenue and Carroll street, and the building is perhaps the handsomest structure of the kind in the city. It contains eighteen rooms and has a tasteful kindergarten building adjoining. The third floor is appropriated to the use of the Branch High School, with 266 pupils, of which D. H. Smith is the Principal, assisted by the following corps: Wm. Deutsch, assistant principal; Wm. Schuyler, assistant principal; Emma A. Abbott, head assistant; Sallie B. Dunnica, head assistant; Mary J. Harris, head assistant, and Minnie K. Davis, teacher of drawing. The following was the order of exercises: Singing—Song of Union. Essay—The Shipwreck; Aug. Hart. Reading—Little Stowaway; Grace Chester. Music—Festival March; 180. Declamation—The American Flag; Singer. Recitation—Tone; Miss Wagner. Music—Twilight Hour; 148. Music—Not Alone, 118. Declamation—The Leap of Roushan Beg, Berle. Music—Departure. The Grammar School, in addition with the Kindergartens (a. m. and p. m.), numbers about 1,300 pupils. The corps of teachers for the Grammar School is as follows: Sallie B. Goodwin, head assistant; Mary E. Goodwin, Mary A. Leavy, Emily H. Denman, Helen H. Hill, Maggie R. Ludlow, Jennie Harris, Louise Coste, Mary L. Dunning, Julia D. Dunn, Hattie B. Charles, Charlotte M. Martling, M. Anna Griffith, Mary K. Goodall, Margarethe Lawitzky, Helene Kruse, Anna Gehike. Kindergarten.—Laura Fisher, Director A. M.; Lizzie Hart, Director P. M.; Helen Flad, Blanche Hart, Huldah Worth, Annie Green, Ella W. Walbridge, Lillie Krouch.

Divoll School.

Mr. A. F. Hamilton is the gentle, manly principal, and he has over twenty assistants, including those in the kindergarten. The building is situated on Dayton street, near Garrison avenue, and is in one of the best portions of the city. From the third story of the north front there can be seen all the upper part of the city, including the Water-works. There are thirteen rooms, one for the kindergarten, and for the exhibitions to-day the two rooms on each side of the hall and on all the floors were thrown into one and two classes combined. The building was crowded with children and their visitors, and all the rooms were specially decorated for the occasion. The exercises ...sisting of music, recitations, ...mpositions and so on ... "Ballad of ... ered by Miss ... Green," by Frank ... funny, and "Lady Clare," ... calfe, was excellent. In Room ... 2, "The Polish Boy," by Miss Millie Frazier, and "The Last Hymn," by Miss Hattie Cook, were splendid performances. In No. 3, Miss Wilson's room, there were some very fine pieces of drawing on the blackboards, and the elocutionary exercises of some of the pupils were extraordinary. "The Charge of the Light Brigade," by Clarence May; "Charcoal," by Eddie Doerner; "The Curfew," by Daisy Pratt; "Pyrams and Thisbe," by Maud Armfield, were all good. Many other performances are deserving of special praise, but the reporter had to leave before they took place. The singing throughout was excellent and was under the charge of William A. Hodgdon. The Divoll school is one of the large schools of the city, the enrollment for this year having been 1,300.

Madison School.

The progress made by this school during the year just closing is all that could be desired. Properly speaking, this school embraces three schools, the Madison proper, or old, the New Madison and Madison Branch, exclusive of the kindergarten department. William M. Bryant, the principal, is ably assisted by a corps of thirty-two teachers, comprising Misses S. Stephens, E. Waugh, L. Hinchman, M. Hackerstaff, M. Alexander, D. Brand, S. M. De Camp, M. L. Fairchild, J. B. Hahn, B. Langsdorf, M. Schreiber, Mrs. C. Peckham, Miss Laura Tutt, Miss A. L. Lick, Miss Hattie E. Jenniss, Miss Theresa Weigel, Mrs. E. C. Clement, Mrs. E. C. Green, Miss Kate Foy, Mrs. Mary R. Herr, Miss Carrie C. Ware, Mrs. Georgie Stephenson, Charles Sommers, Miss B. Bohn, Miss F. Schmidt, Miss E. Meyer, and Miss Gehrmonn. The kindergarten directors are Miss Ida Jorgensen and Miss Holliday. In none of the departments were any special exercises held, only the regular daily ones. A picnic was given on last Friday to Bodemann's Grove, in which all participated, and which proved a pleasant one. During the past five years the sums netted from these annual picnics will exceed $750, and has been devoted to philosophical instruments entirely, of which the school now has a fine assortment. The progress made by the pupils, who number 1,260, has been very fair. The following are a few of the advanced pupils of the high class: Misses Eugenia Deffrey, Annie Morton, Tillie Staengel, Cora Michel, Lillie Schultze, M. Folemin, Rosa Levy, Clara Woerner, Emma Schraubstaedter, Ida Behrens, Annie Fehlman; Ed. Keene, Will. Kemper, Will. Brunswick and Adolph Ephelman.

The Lincoln School.

Mr. Gilfillan, like several other principals, is not a believer in the efficacy of exhibitions; hence the Lincoln made no change in its ordinary routine beyond some unusually fine singing. In the Lincoln Branch object drawing under the Diehl system is one of the features. The room of Miss Culcesth, first assistant, is hung all around with the compositions of the young artists. There were spelling matches, readings and examinations in some of the rooms, and compositions on natural science. A number of names were given to the POST-DISPATCH for mention for their scholarship, attendance and good behavior. The following young ladies and gentlemen never missed a day in the whole school year: Carrie Dowd, Henry Monoghan, Katie Monoghan, Alice Ambruster, Luella Applegate, Everett Smith, Percy Wilkerson, Wright Smith, Jessie Phillips, Rebecca Epstein, Alex. Taylor, Lizzie Knight, Katie Ambruster, L. Monoghan, Perdita Garborina, Wm. Spilker, Joseph Denike, Little Daisy and Wallace Wilson, and a great many other children ought to be specially named, if only space permitted. At the Lincoln, Mr. Gilfillan was kind enough to give some interesting statistics. The average age of the boys is 9.8 and the average age of the girls 9.6 years. There are 1,286 names on the roll, and of these 1,060 were never tardy. Miss Maurice's class, of 37, on examination for entrance to the High School, passed with four exceptions. This is an excellent result and one of which that young lady may feel extremely proud.

Franklin Branch.

Mrs. Ione Anderson is the head assistant and a teacher of high standing.

The programme for the closing day was quite lengthy, but most of the exercises took place in the afternoon, commencing at 1:30 ... o'clock. In the morning there was ... by the little children. The music ... the charge of ...

The Franklin Branch is to be discontinued as a white school, and will be given up to the colored children next year. Mrs. Anderson goes to the Bates School.

Clinton School.

The Clinton School, with Mr. Z. G. Willson as principal, assisted by a corps of thirty teachers, closed a good season's work this afternoon. There was no material change from the regular daily exercises, with the exception of one or two added musical features in the higher grades and a review in the lower. The number of pupils enrolled is 1,500, and there has been throughout the term an average attendance of 94 per cent of that number. The two kindergarten branches of this school have done nicely also. The eighth grade of advanced scholars numbers 45, among whom the following have acquitted themselves splendidly: Kate Bonsoc, Kate Skillmann, Lillie Flesh, Allie Schaeffer, Elisa Fabian, Julia Singer, Annie Fowler, Annie Carpenter, Elvina McClaur, Maud Petree, Lulu Santed, Mamie Hopkins, Lucy Alexander, Paquerette Jolivelt, Genevieve Scott, Emily Seig, Bertha Meister, Bessie Helfenstein, Hattie Porter, Tillie Marsh, Louise Seguenot, Rosanna Steffen, Bertha Langle, Carrie Specht, Carrie Horrwitz, Newberger, Brong, Hall, Hoffman, Glaser, Boyden, Everts, Schliegel, Rosenstengle. Owing to this school being situated so near the parks, no picnic was given this season.

The Eliot and Eads Schools.

The Eliot, situated on Fifteenth and Walnut streets, is in charge of Mrs. Bacon, under whose efficient management it has advanced rapidly. Counting the Eads School, only a block or two away, of which also Mrs. Bacon is principal, there are 1,025 children enrolled. There was no exhibition, nothing more than the usual day's work of the school being performed. Quite a number of visitors were present watching the young ones in their recitations. The singing was very fine, and, as in most of the schools, the black board very nicely decorated. Mrs. Isabel is in charge of the Eads, under Mrs. Bacon, and has prepared a number of beautiful rewards for the best of her children, Alice Jenkins, Mettie Ehninger, Laura Sherwood, Mary Powers, Alice Wells, Mamie Lyon, Laura Spicer, and a number of other deserving little ones. The exercises at the Eads consisted of matches in arithmetic, geography and spelling. The school seems to be prospering nobly, owing to the efforts of the teachers. Miss Donohoe's class was nicely decorated, and the children apparently doing finely. The kindergarten attached to the Eads had its exhibition last Friday. It was ably managed by Misses Tiffin and Hubbard.

Jefferson School.

The first closing exercises held in the new building of the Jefferson School took place this morning, the hall being densely crowded with the girl-pupils, looking very bright in white garments garlanded with flowers, and their friends, who were greatly interested in the proceedings, which were conducted most ably by the Principal, Miss M. A. McClure and her assistants. There are now 1,094 pupils in the school, the maximum for the session being 1,200. The assistants number 29. The exercises for class 1 and 2 were as follows: Programme—Singing. German recitation, Hattie Lawrence. Little Gray Mouse, Pauline Pelgre. Grandpa's Spectacles, Willie Goehrlich. Can't Live without Charlie, Charlie Miller. Pussey Cat, Jimmie Delaunery. The way they Kept a Secret, No. 2. Singing—Little boy and girl. The Swallow. Good for Nothing Little Son, Eddie Pohlman. Little Blue-eyed May, Lottie Wakeman. For Nos. 3 and 4 were as follows: Loomis's steps, music, How friends are kept apart, The Fox and the Mask, Indignation Meeting, The Skylark, The Little House-keeper, Beware of the Widows, How happy the life of a bird must be, The Little Scholar, Mother Goose, How not to get an answer.

Webster School.

This large school, located on the oval flat at Twelfth and Jefferson, has now the large number of 2,038 pupils enrolled, about equally divided as to boys and girls. Mr. M. W. Miller, the principal, has exceedingly arduous duties, and expresses himself highly gratified at the result of the year's work. He has thirty-eight assistants, including the kindergarten, and the two large buildings contain twenty-five class rooms. The school will have no graduating class until the middle of next year. The exhibition of writing and drawing was peculiarly excellent, and reflected great credit upon the pupils and their tutors. The German department is also a fine feature, the proficiency exhibited by the little ones being remarkable. The closing day of the session was devoted to the regular day exercises, with readings and recitations in the various classes. Mr. Miller states that the number of visitors was quite as large as though there had been the usual exhibition exercises, a very gratifying proof of the interest the parents of the children take in their progress.

Ames School.

This elegant new school on Hebert street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, like most of the others, dispensed with the annual exhibition, and the closing day was devoted to class exercises. There are now 1,400 scholars in the school, under the principalship of Mr. J. C. Woodruff. In the kindergarten are 100 attendants in the morning and 100 in the afternoon. Mrs. J. S. Stevenson has charge of this department. Mr. Woodruff's assistants number in all twenty-four. At the Ames School there have been an unusually large number of promotions for general excellence, no less indeed than 250. They have made no efforts to send a graduating class, having last fall sent an eighth-grade class to the Douglas School to stand examination for the High School. During yesterday the number of visitors was very large, the class exercises, recitations and readings being most favorably commented upon by the friends and parents of the pupils. The youngsters were in holiday trim and seemed to enjoy amazingly the prospect of vacation.

Hamilton School.

Miss Mary E. McGrath, the principal of this flourishing school, was kind enough to give a detailed account of the doings of the young ones under her charge.

The school is a large one, there being 1,161 pupils on the roll.

In rooms Nos. 1 and 2 the special exhibition of the day was the calisthenics, in which these classes are peculiarly excellent.

A number of declamations and recitations were given, prominent among which was the "Rival Orators," and a scene from Lord Dundreary. A great many others, of course, were presented. "Ship on Fire," by Eddie Daly, "Truant Boy" by Oscar Blank and John Egan.

In the kindergarten attached to this school there was an extremely fine display, Misses Simmons, Kincaid and Jones having taken extreme pains to make the exhibition a success. The black-boards all through the house are decorated in fine style, some by the teachers and some by the children, and, in view of the preparations made, a very fine exhibition was realized.

Humboldt School.

The closing exercises of this institution were enlivened by singing, recitations and readings in every room. The primary classes have made considerable progress during the season, and in mathematics are not excelled by any school in the city. Mr. C. M. Foster, the principal, and his twenty-five assistants have worked hard, and should hail a short vacation with pleasure. The school took its annual picnic at Union Park on last Monday. The following are among the meritorious pupils of the eighth grade, or high class: Hattie End, Louise Helm, Sarah Kelly, August Michael, Charles Chouquette, Ewald Frellingsdorf and Joseph Schaddin. The total number of pupils enrolled is 1,400, while the average attendance has been 10.89.

Lyon School.

The closing exercises of this school consisted of the regular daily exercises, interspersed with readings, recitations and music by the several members of the different grades. The Lyon School, under the management of Mr. ...

... this ... splend... progress. ... of pupils enrolled is 1,310, among the many advanced pupils of the highest class are: Annie Lemp, Carrie Rogerson, Mollie Lindsay, Alvina Berg, Mamie Cowan, Alvina Kahlbaum, Gertie Green, Mamie Bechtold, Mary Potthoff, Lottie Morgan, Kitty Schlesstein, Ella Arndt, Sylvia Kohlert, Claudia Franklin, Robert Poss, Carl Rollman, Henry Morgan, Charles Fiedler and Henry Wagner. A branch of the Lyon School has been started on the corner of Seventh and Arsenal streets under the supervision of Mrs. Marianna Levin, and has done nicely. The annual picnic of the school was held on the 30th of last month at Bodemann's Grove, and proved a most pleasant affair.

Chouteau School.

This school will not participate in the closing exercises to-day, having concluded its term on yesterday in advance of the remainder of the city schools. There was no unusual programme enacted other than the regular daily exercises of the term, with the exception of one or two added musical selections which were rendered in excellent taste by Prof. Hodgen. This school, under the guidance of Miss Rachel M. Gass is enabled to show a record of progress that any like institution of learning may be proud of. Its pupils number 750, exclusive of the musical and German departments; it is presided over by Miss Rachel M. Gass, principal, with Mrs. Childs, Miss Dunn, Miss Nellie Dean, Mrs. Leahn, Mrs. Cass, Miss Nannie Giles, Miss Woodward and Mrs. Kribbens, as assistants. Extra musical features will be added to the school on the opening of the next term.

Irving School.

The programme for to-day's exercises at the Irving ran thus: Exhibition in the two lower grades, from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m. The morning kindergarten from 9 to 11. The children of the fourth and fifth classes held the fort from 11 to 12; and from noon till 2, the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth classes and afternoon kindergarten were exhibited. O'Fallon School.

At this school, located at Sixteenth street below Cass avenue, no regular exhibition exercises were held, but a very large number of visitors were present at the class exercises. The pupils had a picnic at the Fair Grounds yesterday, in conjunction with the Carr Lane School, and, as they were somewhat tired from their exercises in that line, very severe discipline was not enforced. Mr. John A. Owen, principal, reported the average attendance of pupils for the year to have been 1,082, about equally divided between boys and girls. Mr. Owen considered it the best school year he has ever had. He has twenty-seven assistants.

In the morning there were recitations in the various rooms, and in the afternoon there were spelling matches, readings and calisthenics. The calisthenic exercises were very fine, showing that the children have been well trained. A prettier display than they made in this healthful physical exercise is not often seen.

The Sumner High (Colored).

This institution, under the care of Mr. Clayton, has 900 more than usually intelligent young negroes in attendance. The specimens of drawing and penmanship shown were very creditable, and the singing was really fine. The programme is a very varied one and well calculated to show up all the strong points of the school. Beulah Wright, Virginia Battise, Joe Wilkinson and J. Smith recited "In the Old Church Tower," and W. Coleman and W. Gray sang "The Merry Maiden and the Tar," from "Pinafore." The colored population were out in full force watching the performance, and were evidently highly delighted, as they should be.

The Stoddard School.

Last year the Stoddard had one of the finest exhibitions in the city, but no special exercises whatever were had to-day. The children all came dressed in their bright summer attire, and, while lessons were said as usual, there was not a vast amount of studying. Mr. Caldwell, the principal, occupied his desk as usual, and said he did not have a single point for the reporters this year. The exhibition of last year would have to suffice for this also. There are twenty-three rooms in the Stoddard School, the branch and the kindergarten, and the enrollments for the year reached 2,100.

The Franklin School.

There were no very extraordinary exercises except in the afternoon, when Mr. J. E. Kimball, the principal, was presented with a very flattering letter, signed by all the teachers of the Franklin School, the Franklin Branch and the Kindergarten. The occasion of this pleasant proceeding is that Mr. Kimball is going to be transferred to the First Branch High School. The letter was one worth prizing dearly, and the response made by Mr. Kimball was full of regret of leaving his faithful assistants, so that the affair was a very pleasant one.

Everett School.

At the Everett School, Eighth street, below Cass avenue, Mr. J. W. Hall is principal, assisted by twenty-one ladies and gentlemen. There are 900 pupils, almost equally divided, there being a slight preponderance of girls. The regular exhibition was dispensed with, and Mr. Hall made a sort of general and informal examination in the several classes, which were attentively regarded by large numbers of the friends and relatives of the children, who exhibited much brightness and intelligence. There were a large number of floral offerings from the children to their teachers.

Clay School.

The exercises at this well-known school, on the Bellefontaine Road and Farrar avenue, were conducted this morning under the direction of Mr. Jas. S. Stevenson, the principal, and during the closing day of the session a large number of those interested in the working of the school visited it, and expressed great pleasure at the progress made by the pupils. There are thirty assistants in the school, addition and kindergarten, and everything seemed to be under the most perfect and admirable direction, to judge from the general proficiency exhibited to-day.

Mullanphy School.

The Mullanphy School is situated on Fourteenth street, between Howard and Mullanphy streets. Mr. F. E. Cook is the principal, and he has ten assistants. The number of pupils is 400, of whom two-thirds are girls and one-third boys. The exhibition was dispensed with yesterday, but the attendance at the class-rooms was very large, parents taking a great interest in the progress of the school. The children were decked out in holiday attire, and the teachers' desks were filled with flowers and bouquets.

The Ellerardsville School.

The principal part of the exercises at Ellerardsville was the exhibition of the drawing work done through the year. Mr. Thompson, the principal, prides himself greatly upon the success of his pupils in this regard. A regular examination was held in arithmetic, geography and the other common school studies, interspersed with some very fine declamations and songs.

If the ma[nagers of the] Institute do not want the reporters ... to their exhibitions, why do they publish their announcements in the newspapers? It was with the greatest difficulty that a reporter for this paper could even so much as get his hands on a programme this morning. The ushers, two in number, did not know that any programmes had been printed, and they were quite sure that there were no seats for reporters. About the first they were wrong; about the latter they were right. There were not only no seats for the press, but the press was actually told, in more ways than one, that it was not wanted. It is not supposed that anybody connected with the Mary Institute will read this notice. It is not written for their benefit. As will be seen by the subjoined programme, one of the young lady graduates read an essay on newspapers. It is surprising that anything of the kind was allowed. By hook and by crook the POST-DISPATCH obtained the following programme, but as to the character of the performances nothing can be said because nothing was heard.

It is probable, judging from the number of carriages on the outside, that a great number of people were present, and that to those who enjoyed it the occasion was enjoyable. As discovered by the annual catalogue the following are the graduates: Lucy Bent, Mattie Blow, Mary C. Dryden, Cora A. Dunham, Cora S. Goodson, Mira M. Newman, Edith Powell, Louisa Postel, Susie D. Price, Addie P. Reed, Laura Skrainka, Corinne A. Speck, Emily E. Speck, Lillie I. Swain, Eugenia Switzer, Emma Taussig.

The E. Aull Seminary, Lexington, Mo.

This is the season when the schools are closing up their year's work. In Lexington, there are three of the most excellent and prosperous female schools in Missouri. The Baptist College is the oldest, and this year matriculated one hundred and twenty-three pupils. The Central Female College is the youngest and had an attendance of ninety-eight. The Aull Seminary, during its nineteenth annual session just closed, enrolled one hundred and thirty.

The closing exercises of them all were satisfactory; of the E. A. S., it may be said that they were brilliant, as the music surpassed anything of the kind hitherto exhibited. This institution does not have public exhibitions. Its closing exercises are held at the college chapel in the day time and in the presence of a few friends.

The E. A. S. has a very high standard. Its course of study is not more extensive than that of other good schools; but it demands that it shall be mastered before the diploma is awarded. As a consequence the present president has given but two diplomas during the five years of his administration, although the school has always been full.

It grants certificates of graduation upon each study, when merited by successfully passing a severe written examination on the subject. These stimulate the students, as they furnish an objective point just ahead. These examinations for each branch consume six hours, and are so rigid that only three young ladies of the whole school suc... in passing all they attempted during t...
